

PERSONAL TAX LAW SUBJECTED TO AN ATTACK

COMPLAINT AS TO MANNER OF COLLECTIONS FILED IN THE OF-FICE OF CLERK OF SUPREME COURT IN PHOENIX.

PHOENIX, September 18.—An appeal involving more interest than money was filed in the office of the clerk of the supreme court yesterday. It is apparently intended to test the law providing for the summary collection of taxes on personal property. The appellant is the Gibson Abstract company of Tombstone, representing fifteen assignors, similarly situated and the appellee is the county of Cochise. The law provides that when one does not own real estate or sufficient real estate to cover the amount of his taxes on his personal property, the assessor and tax collector may proceed at any time after assessment to collect the taxes.

In this case some of the assignors owned no real estate and none of them owned enough to cover the amount of the taxes on their personal property. Demand was made upon them for payment and a protest was made against payment until the regular tax paying time for the year came around and the rate for that year had been established. The assessor offered to take the bond of the assignors for the payment but the offer was refused and payment was made under protest.

The tax collected was calculated according to the rate for the preceding year, $2.65 on each $100 for territorial and county purposes. Later, at the meeting of the board of supervisors on the third Monday in August, the rate for the year for which the protestants had paid their taxes was fixed at $2 on each $100 of valuation, so that they had paid on a higher rate by 65 cents on each $100 of valuation than other tax payers of that county were required to pay.

The plaintiffs accordingly contended that they had been taxed unlawfully according to a rate that was not in existence at the time of the collection of the tax, a rate that had not been fixed and accordingly an illegal rate. Claims were made against the county for the return of all the taxes which had been paid in by the abstract company and the assignors, amounting to $193.44. The claims were rejected and suit was brought in the district court for that county. The county demurred to the complaint and the demurrer was sustained. From that order an appeal was taken.

The papers in the appeal of C. L. Cummings, administrator, against M. Rosenberg, and others, also came up from Cochise. This action runs back into ancient history. In 1881 Antonio Peritti was the owner of a couple of lots in the town of Benson, the lots being a portion of the sand waste which existed in that locality at that time and for many years afterward. In 1885, these lots in some way not described in either the complaint or the answer passed into the possession of Rosenberg who proceeded to make certain improvements upon them and who afterward disposed of them to other parties who were made defendants in this action.

Peritti died about the time he secured title to the property and no interest appears to have been taken in the matter until about 1897 when an administrator of his estate appeared and demanded possession. That administrator, so far as the papers show, was lost sight of and last year Cummings, who had been made administrator, began action for possession of the property and for rents amounting to $20,000.

The defendants demurred and answered. They said that for ten years they had enjoyed peaceable and adverse possession of the property before any demand had been made upon them and for ten years thereafter; that Rosenberg when he took possession of the lots believed that he had a valid title to them and proceeded with improvements which have cost $20,000. All the time previous to 1897, when the first demand for possession was made, the plaintiff had stood around watching these improvements without a protest or without informing the defendant that he was not the owner of the property. Since that demand a period of peaceful and adverse possession for ten years more ensued. The demurrer was sustained.

LOOKING FOR WEALTH HE LOST HIS LIFE

MEMBER OF PARTY SEEKING HIDDEN GOLD IS BURIED BENEATH FALLING WALLS OF AN OLD ADOBE AND IS KILLED.

TUCSON, September 18.—Inspired by the belief that they would be as successful as they imagined others had been in discovering hidden gold in an old adobe near the Acquire slaughter house, south of the city, Donesia Romero, a brickmaker who has been working for Cox & Curtin, accompanied by the Edmundo Navear, foreman of the brick-makers, and his brother-in-law, Jose Burrell, yesterday proceeded on a still hunt in search of hidden wealth.

The trio proceeded to the vicinity of the Acquire place a few miles south of town, and during the afternoon they proceeded to raze an old adobe where the imaginary lure was supposed to dwell from the sight of human eyes. The men were engaged in demolishing the rude, unsafe structure when one of the walls fell, completely covering Romero and almost instantly caused the death of the unfortunate wealth seeker.

The men, as quickly as possible, dug out the remains to Reilly's undertaking parlors where the body will be held probably this afternoon.

FALLS TO DEATH IN A MINE SHAFT

C. L. KNUCKEY, AGED MINER, IS KILLED AT BISBEE—LEAVES WIFE AND CHILDREN.

BISBEE, September 18.—C. L. Knuckey was killed about noon yesterday by a fall of six or seven sets down a man-way at the Holbrook. His back was broken in two places, his skull fractured, and he received many other minor injuries. The deceased was about sixty years of age, and had been a miner all his life. He leaves a wife and children and step-children, who reside on Youngblood hill.

Knuckey had started down the man-way to the 500 level, when in some manner unknown, he lost his hold and fell to the bottom, a distance of between forty and fifty feet. He was immediately hoisted to the surface and carried to the Copper Queen hospital, but life was extinct before it was reached.

Justice Hogan was notified, immediately empaneled a jury, and the remains, as well as the place where the accident occurred, were viewed. An inquest will be held this evening at 6 o'clock.

Knuckey had been subject to fainting spells while at work and it is believed that he fainted just before his plunge down the manway.
